hello@unity.world

Dear Valued Customer,

It is with great pleasure that I write to you to let you know about the exciting news that Unity World Ltd is integrating its group of companies into a single branded group called 'Unity', this change will happen on October 1st. The change will create an ecosystem of leading UK Information, Communication, and Technology companies under one brand for the betterment of our customers and partner customers.

This new combined company brings great opportunities for us to add even more value to our Information, Communication, and Technology customers and partner customers; helping you to develop and accelerate your businesses thanks to the increased scale, scope, and capabilities of Unity.

Our leadership team, strategy, and business priorities remain in place. We will be developing, improving, and evolving our structure, systems, tools, and platforms over the coming months so that we can maximise the value you experience from Unity.

As always, we are fully focused on helping your business to develop, accelerate and succeed. We thank you for your continued trust and partnership.

Unity, over the coming weeks and months, will be sending out various communications letting you know how these changes will affect you. In the meantime, if you would like to find out more about the changes, please reach out to us directly through your usual contacts if you have any other questions or comments.

Thank you and best wishes,
Simon Scotchbrook
CEO
